They Charge Auctioneer Jaffre With Favoring Second Hand Dealers and One Threatens to "Beat Him Up"---$3,000 Taken In.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., Nov. 5.—There was an auction sale to-day at Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont's country home, Brookholt, which all but ended in blows between the auctioneer and some of the country folk with the anticipation of getting a bargain.

The auctioneer, a man named Jaffre, came down from New York on an early morning train with some thirty second hand dealers whose cards showed addresses in Fourth avenue and other parts desses in Fourth avenue and other parts of Manhattan's "antique" district.

For some reason unexplained no notice of the auction had been published in any of the local papers or otherwise, posted about the country for the benefit of the local inhabitants, and so the crowd of the local inhabitants, and so the crowd.
